

PROGRAM GUIDE Clinical Trial Myths Busted: Is It Difficult to Participate in a Clinical Trial?

UNDERSTANDING CLINICAL TRIALS

CISCRP, Center for Information and Study on Clinical Research Participation – an independent non-profit organization dedicated to empowering patients and providing education on clinical trial participation

Lazarex Foundation – offers help navigating clinical trial options or financial assistance

FINDING CLINICAL TRIALS

CISCRP, Center for Information and Study on Clinical Research Participation – search clinical trials

Clinical Trials.gov – database of privately and publicly funded clinical studies conducted around the world

Lazarex Foundation – assistance with clinical trial navigation

Merck Oncology Clinical Trials – explore research studies

KEY TIPS

- Search for support and advocacy groups related to your condition online and in social media
- Seek out feedback from someone who has participated in a clinical trial

ASK YOUR DOCTOR OR NURSE NAVIGATOR ABOUT

- Are you a good candidate for a clinical trial?
- Which clinical trial is most appropriate for your condition?
- Assistance understanding the scope of the trial and the clinical trial consent form before you sign up

watch replay

Is It Difficult to Participate in a Clinical Trial?

RELATED PROGRAMS

- How Do Medicare and Medicaid Impact Clinical Trial Participation?
- What Is The Value of Diversity in Clinical Trials?
- Actionable Advice for Knocking Down Obstacles to Trial Participation
- Does the Clinical Trial Process Need an Extreme Makeover?
- Do Patients Have A Voice While Participating in a Clinical Trial?

This is a Patient Empowerment Network program produced by Patient Power. We thank AbbVie Inc., Celgene Corporation, Daiichi Sankyo and Novartis for their support. These organizations have no editorial control. Patient Power is solely responsible for program content.