

WHAT QUESTIONS SHOULD YOU ASK ABOUT YOUR CLL CARE?

Collaborate | Program Resource Guide

What Is Shared Decision-Making?

Shared Decision-Making (SDM) is a process where the healthcare team and patients collaborate to make decisions about care and treatment. It involves reviewing available clinical options and discussing the patient's values, preferences, and goals to arrive at well-informed, mutually agreed-upon healthcare choices.

Questions Diagnosis	Questions Treatment Planning
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ Do you have experience treating CLL? ▪ What stage is my CLL, and what is my prognosis? ▪ Do I need to have additional testing, like biomarker testing, to help guide my care and treatment decisions? ▪ Should I start treatment immediately? Why or why not? ▪ If I am put on watch and wait, how will I be monitored? 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ What are my treatment options? ▪ Which approach do you recommend and why? ▪ What are the potential side effects, and how will they be managed? ▪ Are there clinical trials that might be right for me? ▪ How will we know if the treatment is working? ▪ How is the recommended treatment administered and for how long?

Treatment Consideration Questions

- What is the potential impact on my lifestyle? Will the therapy interfere with daily activities or my work schedule?
- Are there financial resources to assist with costs or to help me plan for the future?
- Who should I reach out to if I'm having symptoms or side effects?
- What follow-up care will I need once treatment is over?
- If the treatment is not successful, what is the next step?

Collaborate CLL Resources <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ What You Should Know About CLL Clinical Trials ▪ Which Treatment Is Right for YOUR CLL? ▪ How Is CLL Treated? ▪ Understanding YOUR CLL Diagnosis ▪ Tools for Accessing Quality CLL Care ▪ Tips, Tools and Resources for CLL Care Partners 	Collaborate CLL is brought to you by the Patient Empowerment Network. It is sponsored by AbbVie, Inc. and through generous donations from people like you.
----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------